Pelosi on Health: 'It Will Win'

Confident House speaker to restart talks on overhaul

WASHINGTON | Defying skeptics in her party, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi vowed Sunday to overcome lingering obstacles and pass health care reform in the House, restoring momentum to President Obama's top domestic priority and order to her own unruly Democratic caucus.

"When I take this bill to the floor, it will win," Pelosi said on CNN's "State of the Union." "This will happen."

The speaker, who has struggled to overcome a series of recent setbacks, raised the stakes by planning to restart talks Monday among bickering Democrats on the Energy and Commerce Committee, one of three House panels where the bill stalled last week. Democratic leaders are newly confident that these differences can be resolved, possibly in time to bring a House bill to the floor before the August recess.

The chaos underscores the difficulty of transforming a major sector of the economy in a single piece of legislation, and also the perils of rushing Obama's priorities through Congress before concerns about the 2010 midterm elections take hold. "What we don't want is for the process to bog down here," senior White House adviser David Axelrod said. "We want to keep moving forward, and I believe we will." Chemical Used in IVs Scrutinized

Study says substance in plastic may pose liver risk for preemies

CHICAGO | A chemical used in many plastic products and already under scrutiny for potential health risks is suspected of raising the risk of liver problems in premature babies, according to a new study.

The small study in a German hospital suggests a chemical known as a phthalate, used in some intravenous feeding bags and tubing, may raise preemies' chances for liver damage.

Rigorous research on phthalates' effects in humans is lacking, and at least one expert found the German study unconvincing. There is no solid proof implicating the phthalate studied, DEHP.

However, the researchers said their results show that hospitals treating newborns or preemies should turn to IV equipment that doesn't contain DEHP.

Premature babies' livers are immature, so they are already at risk for liver complications. They also are often fed intravenously, a practice already known to increase liver problems. LINDSEY TANNER (AP)

Palin Seeks New Political Terrain

Ex-GOP VP nominee ready to move back to the national stage

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA | Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin was scheduled to step down Sunday, prompting fresh speculation about her political future, which has been clouded by ethics probes, mounting legal bills and dwindling popularity.

A few things are known: Palin is scheduled to speak Aug. 8 at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library in California, and has said she plans to write a book, campaign for political candidates from coast to coast and build a right-of-center coalition.

Palin arrived about 12:15 p.m.

CRIME The Ol' Switcheroo It's one of the oldest tricks in the playbook of scams. New York City police said three men stole $120,000 worth of jewelry at Grand Central Terminal by furtively switching a bag containing the jewels with an identical duffel. Police said two jewelry company employees were transporting the bag June 24 when one of them put down the bag "momentarily" to toss out garbage. That's when two of the suspects created a diversion by dropping a $10 bill on the ground, while a third suspect switched the bags. (AP)

Anthrax Probe Nears End

Sources: Government may soon declare the terrorism case closed

WASHINGTON | A year after government scientist Bruce Ivins killed himself while under investigation for the lethal anthrax letters of 2001, the Justice Department is on the verge of closing the long, costly and vexing case.

Several law enforcement officials told The Associated Press that the department had tentatively planned last week to close the case but backed away from that decision after government lawyers said they needed more time to review the evidence and determine what further information can be made public.

Officials told the AP the decision to close the case has been put off for what may be weeks, as the FBI and Justice Department continue to wrestle with the investigation.

Justice Department spokesman Dean Boyd declined to comment on the discussions but said the agency and the FBI continue working to conclude the investigation.

Bruce Ivins works in his lab in this undated image. Ivins committed suicide July 29, 2008, as authorities prepared to charge him in the 2001 anthrax attacks.

The anthrax letters were sent to lawmakers and news organizations as the nation reeled after the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks. The spores killed five people.

For years, the FBI chased leads. Then, last year, they announced that the mystery had been solved, but the suspect was dead. As the FBI closed in on Ivins last summer, the microbiologist took a fatal overdose of Tylenol, dying on July 29, 2008.

After Ivins' suicide, FBI Director Robert Mueller said the investigation found Ivins was the culprit.

Potential for Change in Iraqi Poll

Kurdish opposition party expects gains in parliamentary vote

SULAIMANIYAH, IRAQ | An opposition party on Sunday claimed there had been violations in the presidential and parliamentary elections in Iraq's self-ruled Kurdish region but said it still expected a strong showing.

The opposition front called Change was at the heart of a push for reform in a bid to shake up the political establishment in Iraq's three Kurdish-ruled provinces that have been dominated by two parties for decades.

A high turnout in Saturday's elections was apparently fueled by excitement over the rare show of opposition to the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan and the Kurdistan Democratic Party, which have been accused of corruption, intimidation and failing to provide services.

Workers in Sulaimaniyah, Iraq, sort ballots on Sunday after the Kurdish elections ended. Early results are expected Monday.

Shahou Saeed, a spokesman for the Change list, said it had registered complaints with the electoral commission ranging from what it said was an unwarranted extension of polling hours to balloting by unregistered voters.

The Shams Network, an independent Kurdish electoral observer panel, raised concerns that the ink used to mark the thumbs of voters who had cast ballots could be easily washed off, allowing someone to vote more than once. The panel overseeing the poll promised to investigate official complaints.

Preliminary results were to be announced Monday, according to a statement by the Iraqi government's media office.

However, early projections based on counts by the parties suggested the PUK and the KDP would retain their overall majority in parliament while the Change list scored big in the city of Sulaimaniyah. YAHYA BARZANJI (AP) formed a battery of tests on the president, who is known for his hyperactivity. The presidential Elysee Palace said Sarkozy's test results were normal but that doctors would keep him under cardiological observation until Monday.

Upon his collapse, Sarkozy, 54, was rushed by helicopter to a military hospital. His office denied the president had lost consciousness in the episode. The Elysee Palace statement followed reports from members of Sarkozy's government and his chief of staff, who had indicated that Sarkozy had lost consciousness.

French Health Ministry Roselyne Bachelot, speaking live on French 2 television, said Sarkozy had suffered a "small" vasovagal episode. A vagal episode can be caused by strenuous exercise when it is very hot. It can lead to a temporary loss of consciousness but usually is not serious. DEBORAH SEWARD (AP)

Mousavi, reformist request public service for victims of unrest

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iran's opposition leader asked authorities Sunday for permission to hold a memorial service for victims of last month's post-election unrest, including a young woman whose death was caught on video and became a symbol for protesters.

Iranian authorities have pressured the families of slain protesters not to mourn publicly, out of fear the gatherings could spark the kind of demonstrations that followed the June 12 presidential vote, according to the opposition.

Opposition leader Mir Hossein Mousavi and fellow pro-reform presidential candidate Mahdi Karroubi sent a request to the Interior Ministry to hold a memorial service in Tehran's Mosalla mosque Thursday to commemorate the end of the 40-day mourning cycle

Police Chief Arrested in DUI Case

Alexandria official involved in collision in Arlington County

Alexandria Police Chief David P. Baker has been placed on administrative leave after he was arrested Saturday night on suspicion of drunken driving after he was involved in a collision in Arlington County while driving an unmarked city vehicle, authorities said.

Baker allegedly had a blood alcohol level of .19, authorities said. City Manager James K. Hartmann named Deputy Police Chief Earl Cook as acting chief.

"It is very disappointing when any of our colleagues makes a bad decision," Hartmann said during a news conference Sunday morning.

An internal investigation is under way, and Hartmann said he would wait until that review is complete next week before determining whether to fire Baker for the alleged offense. The review will be conducted by Alexandria's human resources department and city attorney's office.

The accident occurred at about 11 p.m. in Arlington near the intersection of Interstate 66 and North Fairfax Drive. Arlington Detective Crystal Nosal, a spokeswoman for the department, said it happened as Baker, driving his city-issued green Ford Explorer, reportedly tried to merge onto Route 66. Nosal said Baker is listed as the at-fault driver on the accident report.

Nosal would not identify the other driver other than to say she is a woman whose injuries included "whiplash, neck or back pain."

Cook, who has temporarily replaced Baker, is an Alexandria native who has worked for the department for 30 years. He and Baker both vied for the chief posi-

The city is looking to cut costs to deal with a projected $666 million revenue shortfall over the next two years. (AP)

ClearChoice Changed Their Lives in Just ONE Appointment!*

Dental Implants Are the Closest Thing to Natural Teeth

Dental Implants are small titanium screws that function much like the roots of natural teeth. They support fixed replacements for one tooth, several teeth, or even a full set of teeth. With Implant-supported dental restorations, you can chew with the power of natural teeth and slow down the facial aging process.

No More Dentures

Fed up with messy creams and adhesives or plastic in your mouth? Dentures inhibit an active lifestyle and can greatly affect self-confidence. They also provide no support within the jaw, resulting in deterioration and shrinkage of the jaw bone, often causing pain, discomfort, loss of chewing ability, and resulting in significant facial aging. ClearChoice can change all that.

No More Bridges

Bridges are a three-tooth solution for a one-tooth problem. Healthy teeth must be filed down just to support the bridge. Bridges also take a pounding as you chew, limiting their lifespan.

ClearChoice can help to avoid that. Dental Implants are the modern solution for missing teeth, and can eliminate most of the problems associated with bridges. Dental Implants are as close to natural teeth as you can get and can last a lifetime.

Implants & New Teeth

A Slice of South Asia, Now in Print

Indian entrepreneur caters to niche market with a new magazine

WASHINGTON | It hardly seems the time, given the economy, to start a magazine.

But Rick Khosla, an Indian entrepreneur in Virginia, is doing just that, complete with a fancy launch party in August.

Washington Masala, which is modeled after Washington Life, will cater to educated, affluent South Asians in the area.

"It's a very niche market that has always been overlooked," Khosla said recently at a Starbucks in Capitol Hill with galleys of the 96-page first issue."

A lot of the $100,000 for the first issue came from Khosla's pocket. But he believes the magazine will become self-sustaining within three months.

Rick Khosla thinks Washington Masala will be self-sustaining within months.

Khosla's magazine will include news about Bollywood, profiles of successful local South Asians and tips on getting into local universities.

Sandip Roy, an editor at New American Media, an association representing 2,000 ethnic news organizations, said such a publication might be able to fill a hole in the South Asian market. "That kind of glossy magazine has not existed for the longest time," Roy said. (AP)

CURRENCY

Those greenbacks in your wallet have been losing their punch for months, thanks to a weaker economy and the government's aggressive attempts to fix it. Here are some questions and answers about how a weaker currency will affect you.

1 What's going to be more expensive?

You already saw the effect of a weak dollar at the gas pump this year. This summer, the rise in fuel prices was unexpectedly strong, given that the nation has witnessed the worst recession in generations. So, what happened? Investors poured billions of dollars into energy commodities, namely oil, which is often used as a hedge against inflation by investors. Because oil is bought and sold in dollars, it essentially becomes cheaper when the dollar falls.

2 Where else can we expect to see the effects of a weaker dollar?

If the dollar continues to fall, Wal-Mart and other retailers that rely on cheap goods from Asia will increasingly find it hard to find deals, and the same might happen to you. For example, Chinese manufacturers will see smaller profits by being paid in dollars, and at some point they're going to try to make up for it by hiking up the price of their goods. CHRIS KAHN (AP)

Make Every Donation Count

With the recession taking a toll, it may be time to prioritize your charitable giving

CHICAGO As the recession lingers, strapped charitable donors are still coming to terms with their reduced ability to give.

It's been a difficult time for charities and those who support them. Charitable giving by individuals was down an inflation-adjusted 6 percent last year, according to the Giving USA Foundation.

The good news: There are ways to stretch charitable dollars to make sure your contributions have more impact. Here are five tips for how to make your charitable contributions count:

Set Up a Giving Budget

Treat your philanthropy as you would your household expenses and create a budget. Sit down with your spouse or partner and discuss your values and what causes you want to support. Then establish a charitable budget for the rest of 2009 and for 2010.

Examine Charities Closely

Do the same due diligence on your donations that you would your investments or your business.

A pedestrian donates to a Salvation Army kettle in New York. The charity is collecting donations all summer due to the recession.

Take a look at an organization's financial data, going back as far as five years. Pay close attention to the overhead. Anything above 9 to 14 percent signifies too much money goes to staff or office space and not enough to the beneficiaries, said Stephanie Risa Stein, managing director of Philanthropic Capital Advisors LLC.

Vet organizations through GuideStar.org, CharityNavigator.org and the Better Business Bureau.

Donate Services or Time

Think of nontraditional ways of giving to a charity. Organizations prefer your cash but also may need assistance.

If you own a business, donate space for an event. If you have a cleaning firm, supply free janitorial service. Provide free legal or audit services if you can.

Focus Your Money

Consolidate your contributions at a single charity rather than giving smaller amounts to multiple organizations. Even if you have less money to give, this can have more impact.

Some charities offer thank-you gifts or incentives for giving certain amounts — everything from key rings to calendars, tickets and more. Tell them, "Thanks, but no, thanks." That means all your money goes to the organization and not for swag. DAVE CARPENTER (AP)

Kearns Breaks Out With Walk-Off

Struggling Nationals veteran singles home winning run in 10th

NATIONALS | Austin Kearns' role has changed from power-hitting regular to bench player. What's remained constant is his veteran approach to difficult circumstances.

Austin, inserted into the game as a defensive replacement in the ninth inning, drove in the winning run with a two-out, 10th-inning single, and the Washington Nationals beat the San Diego Padres 3-2 on Sunday.

"Austin is such a pro, and he gave us a professional at-bat," said interim manager Jim Riggleman. "He got a good pitch to hit, and he drove it. He's in a tough situation because he doesn't get to play that much."

Nyjer Morgan, held out of the starting lineup with a tight left hamstring before entering the game as a pinch hitter in the eighth, led off the decisive rally with a bunt single down the third base line off Greg Burke (2-3).

Nationals reserve outfielder Austin Kearns is mobbed by teammates after his game-winning hit in the 10th inning on Sunday.

Willie Harris sacrificed Morgan, Nick Johnson was intentionally walked and Ryan Zimmerman flew out. Kearns, who was 6 for 45 in his past 29 games, then shot a single into the gap in right-center.

"You still have the same focus in that situation — just trying to get the guy in," said Kearns, who raised his average to .201 with the winning hit. "Just trying to get a pitch to hit and not miss it. Don't foul it off or anything, square it up and see what happens." (AP)

Henderson, Rice Enshrined in Hall

Left fielders make it to Cooperstown via very different paths

BASEBALL | Jim Rice's icy glare melted into a wide smile. Brash, flamboyant Rickey Henderson was humbled by it all.

The former left fielders were inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame on Sunday along with the late Joe Gordon, and Henderson, baseball's all-time leading base stealer, was briefly overcome before evoking some hearty laughs.

"My journey as a player is complete," Henderson said. "I am now in the class of the greatest players of all time, and at this moment I am very humbled."

Henderson holds the record for steals with 1,406, runs scored with 2,295, unintentional walks with 2,129, and homers leading off a game with 81.

While Henderson, now 50, was just the 44th player elected to the Hall in his first year of eligibility, Rice had to wait until his final year of eligibility to be selected.

"It doesn't matter that the call came 15 years later," Rice said. "What matters is that I got it."

Markakis Leads Orioles to Rare Win in Boston

ORIOLES | Nick Markakis homered and drove in three runs off a struggling John Smoltz, and the Baltimore Orioles broke an 11-game losing streak at Fenway Park with a 6-2 win over the Boston Red Sox on Sunday.

David Hernandez (3-2) allowed one run and five hits in seven innings.

Baltimore won its first game in Boston since July 11, 2008. It was the team's third win in its last 30 games against AL East opponents.

Alberto Contador, center, celebrates in Paris after winning the Tour de France on Sunday. Andy Schleck, left, was second; Lance Armstrong, right, finished in third place.

Vernon Forrest was a three-time champ who defeated "Sugar" Shane Mosley.

Ex-WBC Champion Is Killed

Forrest leaves legacy of excellence inside and outside the ring

OBITUARY | Vernon Forrest, a former three-time champion who gained stardom when he became the first boxer to defeat "Sugar" Shane Mosley, was fatally shot during an apparent robbery in Atlanta, police said Sunday.

Atlanta Police Sgt. Lisa Keyes said in an e-mail Sunday that Forrest, 38, was shot "multiple times in the back" Saturday night. Keyes said there are no suspects.

"Vernon was one of the few decent people in boxing," promoter Gary Shaw said Sunday. "I mean really decent. He cared about mentally challenged adults. He cared about kids. I just can't believe it."

Forrest, a native of Augusta, Ga., who lived in Atlanta, was a member of the 1992 Olympic team. He also was a former IBF welterweight and two-time WBC junior middleweight champion.

Forrest helped launch the Destiny's Child group homes in Atlanta, which worked to provide homes for the mentally disabled.

"It was truly his calling," Forrest's publicist, Kelly Swanson, said of his work with children. "When he wasn't boxing, this was his full-time job." CHARLES ODUM (AP)

Armstrong finishes third as his teammate wins the yellow jersey

TOUR DE FRANCE | Lance Armstrong's children were dressed in yellow. He was not.

When the seven-time Tour de France champion returned to the Tour podium Sunday, his family was there. And so was his rival and teammate Alberto Contador — wearing the coveted yellow jersey.

Four years after his seventh Tour win, Armstrong capped his return with a third-place finish.

Contador won the Tour for a second time Sunday, and Mark

—LANCE ARMSTRONG, ON HIS KIDS’ SEEING HIM LOSE FOR ONCE

Cavendish of Britain collected his sixth stage win of this year's Tour in the ride from Montereau-Fault-Yonne to the Champs-Elysees.

"I'm realistic; I did everything I could," Armstrong said before the final stage. "For me, and even more for my kids, it's probably a healthy thing for them to see, because they saw their dad that never lost."

Contador also had to battle within his Astana team, where Armstrong's comeback out of retirement raised questions about who would be the team leader.

"We are totally incompatible. In the end, Armstrong will go his way, and I'll go mine," he said. (AP)

Mexico Golden vs. U.S. in Cup Final

SOCCER | Mexico won its fifth Gold Cup, breaking a decade-long drought on U.S. soil by routing the Americans 5-0 in the final.

Before a capacity crowd of 79,156 overwhelmingly dominated by green-clad Mexican fans Sunday, the visitors scored all their goals in the second half.

SWIMMING Relay Replay Michael Phelps and the Americans got the best of France again in the relay. And just like Beijing, the world's greatest swimmer owed a big hand to his teammates Sunday. Phelps led off the 400-meter freestyle relay, his first event of the world swimming championships, but was in third when he turned it over to Ryan Lochte, who hung tough in the second leg. Then, Matt Grevers did his part in the third leg, and Nathan Adrian overtook the Russians and held off France to win in 3 minutes, 9.21 seconds. (AP)

Jimmy Fallon plays himself (sort of) on the show-in-a-show "7th Floor West."

NBC's Must-See Micro TV

'7th Floor West' airs within "Late Night With Jimmy Fallon"

HIDDEN TREASURES | Since arriving in March, "Late Night with Jimmy Fallon" has proved itself a worthy player in the comedy game.

It has also given birth to an unexpected world within a world — a dandy little miniseries within "Late Night" (12:35 a.m., NBC) that spoofs shows such as "The Hills" in a bizarro backstage version of "Late Night."

"7th Floor West" was introduced during Fallon's first week. Recent installments have premiered dependably each Monday.

Jimmy Fallon plays Jimmy, the good-guy host of a late-night talk show who is constantly undermined by his sneaky head writer. "7th Floor West" is very much like the real "Late Night," without being anything like it. What it mostly resembles is "The Hills" blended with the shallowest elements of high school.

James Cameron's 'Avatar' introduces a revolutionary new 3-D filmmaking technique

TECHNOLOGY | When James Cameron directed his first 3-D film, "Terminator 2: 3-D," for Universal Studios theme parks more than a decade ago, the bulky camera equipment made some shots awkward or impossible.

At $60 million, the 12-minute film was the most expensive frame-for-frame production ever.

Now, five months from its release, Cameron's "Avatar," the first feature film he has directed since 1997's "Titanic," promises to take 3-D cinematography to an unrivaled level.

$237M

The budget for "Avatar," which uses an advanced 3-D camera system partially invented by director James Cameron. Cameron's last movie, "Titanic," grossed $1.84 billion worldwide.

The movie uses digital 3-D technology, which requires audience members to wear polarized glasses. It is a vast improvement on the sometimes headache-inducing techniques that relied on cardboard cutout glasses with red and green lenses.

"Avatar" also raises the bar on "performance capture" technology, which creates computerized images from real human action.

DIMENSIONAL PORTAL: James Cameron's first feature film since "Titanic," "Avatar," will require viewers to wear polarized eyeglasses to see it in 3-D.

MARK FELLMAN/20TH CENTURY FOX

BOX OFFICE G-Whiz An elite squad of guinea pigs has worked its own brand of magic at the box office, taking the No. 1 spot from boy wizard Harry Potter. The 3-D animated flick "G-Force" was the top movie at the box office this weekend, opening with $32.2 million. Last week's No. 1 film, "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince," came in a close second with an estimated $30 million. That's a whopping 61 percent drop from its huge opening last weekend of $79.5 million. The sixth installment in the "Harry Potter" franchise has now made $222 million total. (AP)

The movie depicts an ex-soldier's interactions with 10-foot-tall aliens on the luminous planet of Pandora.

The $237 million production is not as expensive as some 2-D fare such as "Spider-Man 3" (2007), which was made for $258 million. But it blows away "Monsters vs. Aliens" (2009), a 3-D animation movie made for $175 million.

“If you know Jim Cameron, it’s all about pushing the envelope.”

—VINCE PACE, WHO HELPED CAMERON DESIGN THE 3-D CAMERA SYSTEM USED IN "AVATAR."

Then again, "Titanic" grossed $1.84 billion worldwide.

"If you know Jim Cameron, it's all about pushing the envelope," said Vince Pace, who helped him develop the 3-D camera system used in "Avatar."

In some of the "Avatar" footage released at Comic-Con, humans filmed with his 3-D camera rig are mixed with the computer-generated images of the movie's avatars — beings created with mixed human and alien DNA.

Cameron said he wanted to have the filmmaking techniques fade into the background as the story took over.

"The ideal movie technology is so advanced that it waves a magic wand and makes itself disappear," he said. RYAN NAKASHIMA (AP)

For Peru, Pisco in Our Time

Cheer yet another independence day with South American treats and beverages

FREEDOM FROM FEAR | Peru declared independence from Spain 188 years ago tomorrow. This would seem a lot more momentous if we hadn't already celebrated what feels like a billion international independence days this month.

As it is, what with all the French champagne, Belgian beer and good old American red, white and blue food we've consumed in the past three weeks, Peruvian independence seems like overkill. But, hey, we'll take any excuse for a highbrow party in this town, especially if there's cheap alcohol involved.

But back to Peruvian independence. The pisco sour is the official drink of Peru — and of Chile, a fact that's caused more than a few fights between the two nations. But you don't have to worry about that when you're knocking back $5 pisco sours at Poste's independence day party.

The Peruvian Embassy sponsors the shindig, which takes place on Poste's patio and carries a $5 cover charge, which will benefit Coprodeli, an organization that funds education, health care and disaster relief services in Peru. There will be a jewelry and fashion show from local salons and boutiques, along with a raffle to round out the night.

If that sounds like too much for a Tuesday, you can always head over to Inti restaurant. Located right near D.C. staple Lauriol Plaza — but never as crowded or overpriced — Inti features decent food and $5 cocktails from 5 to 8 p.m.

If you just want some late-night snacks that also celebrate Peru's bold emancipation, there are myriad Peruvian chicken places dotting the District that will satisfy your needs. We like El Pollo Sabroso, in Mount Pleasant, for its inexpensive, no-frills approach and its always perfectly cooked and spiced chicken. Just thinking about it makes us want to declare independence from Spain. This is one of the only late-night food spots that can get us to be unfaithful to Amsterdam Falafelshop, so you know it has to be out-of-this-world good. FIONA ZUBLIN (EXPRESS)

1 Moonshine Drama

Underground theater company Taffety Punk returns with its yearly "Bootleg Shakespeare," for which the actors have one day to rehearse one of the Bard's more obscure plays. This year it's "Troilus and Cressida," that time-tested tale of love and betrayal set during the Trojan War. Sex, misogyny and violence abound, as is generally the case with Shakespeare. Oh, and tickets are free! F.Z.

The concert series at Fort Reno park is a hipster's dream: It costs you nothing, you can hear all of D.C.'s great underground music over the course of a summer, and it's safely nestled in Northwest instead of any of the scarier parts of D.C. The sad news: It ends July 30. So, head up there tonight and catch indie-American duo Pree. f.z.

Busboys and Poets is walking the social justice walk with its screening of "Abused Innocence," a documentary about battered children in Africa. It'll certainly make you feel awful for complaining about the bad parking space you got this morning, but, hopefully, it'll also raise awareness about some of the horrors afflicting the area, from wars to the HIV/AIDS outbreak to domestic violence. How to Fix the World

The Yes Men attempt to bring social change with seditious pranks

REALITY? | What if "Borat" had a profound message, or if "Jackass" made you think? The documentary "The Yes Men Fix the World" (9 p.m., HBO) combines meticulously planned pranks with a serious social agenda.

The Yes Men consist of Andy Bichlbaum and Mike Bonanno. They argue that our current economic system operates like a dangerous religious cult. They claim that for the past generation, people in both the public and the private sector have worshipped at the altar of Milton Friedman and his faith in the virtues of personal greed, and that the elevation of the market as the arbiter of all things has been disastrous, dehumanizing and destructive.

They go on to pull off audacious stunts as fake representatives of Exxon, Halliburton, the federal government and the New York Times. After almost every prank, the local and national media react with outrage and pique, accusing the Yes Men of cruelty.

Like the best comedy or magic act, "Yes Men" will have you wondering, "How did they do that?" And more to the point, "How did they get away with that?" In many movie thrillers of the recent past, people who challenge the status quo, cost big business big money or embarrass the government, are almost always killed or driven into exile.

The "Yes Men" did all that and more and have lived to tell the tale. That's their real message. You may not be able to change the world, but you can have fun trying. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

A Bright New Light Idea

Organic LEDs could transform the home illumination industry

GLOW | Someday, our ceilings and walls might radiate light, illuminating indoor spaces as brightly and evenly as natural daylight.

Though that possibility remains years away, the Dutch electronics company Philips is letting people tinker with the technology that would enable it.

The world's biggest lighting maker has begun selling do-it-yourself kits with little glowing wafers called "Lumiblades." They come in red, white, blue or green for anyone who wants to pay nearly $100 per square inch.

It's one of the first chances people outside research labs have had to get their hands on lights made from organic light emitting diodes, or OLEDs.

The company's aim is to get designers, architects and other creative types thinking about how flat lights can be used, and to start collaborating on early products.

General Electric Co., Siemens AG and Royal Philips Electronics NV, which are developing OLEDs, think the technology will eventually be more efficient than traditional incandescent bulbs, energy-saving compact fluorescent lights and even the LED lights just now reaching the market.

OLEDs have a key advantage: They emit light evenly from a whole surface, rather than a single point. That eliminates the need for lampshades and other coverings that scatter light and protect eyes from glare.

Creating light and then immediately shading it is an inefficient way of doing things, from an engineering standpoint.

Toshiba Mulls Making Blu-Ray DVD Products

TOKYO | After losing its battle to make the HD-DVD the successor to the DVD, Toshiba Corp. is considering making products in the winning format, Blu-ray.

Although Blu-ray is backed by Toshiba competitors such as Sony Corp. and Panasonic Corp., Toshiba has little choice. It no longer makes recorders and players in HD-DVD. The Blu-ray alliance was more successful in wooing Hollywood studios.

The Yomiuri, Japan's biggest newspaper, reported last week without identifying sources that Toshiba plans to enter the Blu-ray market.

The Blu-ray market could be too lucrative for Toshiba to pass up. The Japanese electronics maker racked up its biggest loss ever, $3.7 billion, in its last fiscal year. (AP)

B.I.O.

BY INVITATION ONLY: UPCOMING WEDDINGS & UNIONS

Keith Cole, II, Kenya Edwards

Keith, 27, is an IT professional. Kenya, 26, is an administrative specialist and a part-time promotional model. They live in Laurel.

■ The Main Event: An Aug. 30 formal celebration (Keith will be wearing white) in Memphis, Tenn., featuring yellow roses and butterflies, 100 guests and Kenya's cousin as the officiant.

■ Honeymoon: Boca Raton, Fla.

■ How They Met: Her first day of college at Tennessee State. They were both in relationships at the time, so they didn't realize there was anything special.

■ First Impressions: "I always thought she was pretty, but I also thought she was one of those simple country bumpkins. Needless to say, I was wrong!"

■ First Date: Olive Garden.

■ How He Proposed: In front of her family at her graduation party. "I immediately started crying, but I turned away so no one could see me," she says. He thought it was "so cute! Of course, she said yes."

■ Most Hated Clothing Item: "She has these flower shorts she wears to bed. They are so short, but they flare out like they were inflated. I call them balloon shorts!"

■ Pet Names: He's "Sweetface," because he has the cutest cheeks in the world."

■ Mmm, Cake: Keith's groom's cake combines some of his favorite things: the Redskins, Spider-Man and Scooby-Doo.

"I always thought she was pretty, but I thought she was one of those simple country bumpkins."

Joining the Club

DAN CALARCO was a senior and president of Brown University's Model United Nations, and had "great taste in shoes." JESS MCCROY was the smitten freshman who decided to run for a leadership post in the club to spend more time with the cute president. Dan's first interview question for her was about what kind of computer she had; nervous, she stammered, "Mac. No, wait, PC!"

Although Jess didn't get the post, Dan remembered her, and one day when walking to a meeting, he stopped her and asked her to dinner. "I was totally flattered that he was asking me out on a 'real' date," she says. He proposed during his five-year college reunion at the same spot. "We were on our way to the formal dance, so I was wearing a tux and Jess was wearing a gown, so I knew it would be a memorable moment," he says.

Dan, 28, is a program manager at a nonprofit. Jess, 25, is a Ph.D. student. They're marrying Aug. 15 at Brown University.

Simon Braune, Nami Kodaka

Simon, 32, is a librarian. Nami, 38, is a TV producer. They live in Washington.

■ The Main Event: The couple will marry Aug. 23 in a Jewish ceremony witnessed by 70 guests. Nami will walk down the aisle accompanied by Japanese folk music.

■ How They Met: Through an online dating service right when they were ready to delete their profiles.

■ First Date: Sushi and sake in Woodley Park. "I was surprised at how expensive it was," he says.

■ How He Proposed: He gave her a teddy bear and a card reading, "Will you marry me?" in Japanese. "He researched the correct translation ... I could not stop crying for joy," Nami says.

■ Making It Special: Her father, who has Parkinson's disease, obtained permission from his doctor to travel to the United States for the wedding.

■ Celebrating Heritage: The ceremony is Jewish, the music and decorations are Japanese, and Nami is "looking forward to being carried on a chair. I am in the middle of learning Jewish culture."

>> Weddings Wanted

"I cannot think of an athlete who has both overcome such severe illness and then reached and repeated such greatness in such a grueling sport as has Lance Armstrong."

MEDIACONCEPTS.BLOGSPOT.COM WAS IMPRESSED BY THE 37-YEAR-OLD CANCER SURVIVOR'S EFFORT IN THE TOUR DE FRANCE, EVEN THOUGH HE CAME IN THIRD. ARMSTRONG HAS WON THE RACE SEVEN TIMES.

"You have to admit, that's a bit of an uncomfortable situation: 'Hi, I'm just about to eat one of your comrades. Have a nice day.'"

THEABBOTOFUNREASON.BLOGSPOT.COM WAS A BIT WEIRDDED OUT WHEN A PERSON DRESSED IN A CHICKEN COSTUME GREETED HIM AS HE WAS GETTING READY TO ORDER A SANDWICH AT A CHICKEN RICO OVER THE WEEKEND.

"I THINK Humpty Dumpty was prophetic on the issue of fence sitting, so I'm just going to say it: free market + health care = an inexcusable and immoral failure."

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your energy and enthusiasm are likely to wax and wane throughout the day. Save your biggest push for one of your high periods.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Anticipation is the key to success. The further you can see clearly ahead of you, the more likely you are to avoid major pitfalls.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may be unusually stubborn. Where you are known for your reasonable approach to disagreements, you'll stand your ground.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll be driven to attempt something that is not in your usual repertoire. This new you will impress some — but not all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can expect the actions of others to affect you more directly than usual. You'll have to change gears more than once.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to navigate smoothly what is, for some, a difficult path, you'll have to follow your own road map with great care.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You've been letting others call the shots long enough. Today, you'll have the chance to step forward and take the lead for a while.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may find yourself getting more upset than usual at another's careless behavior. Your reaction is surely out of proportion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't expect to keep your own feelings and opinions to yourself all day long — but at certain turning points you'll want to keep mum.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Willpower can do only so much for you at this time. Are you really prepared to take advantage of opportunities that arise unexpectedly?

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll want to follow your own plans with strict accordance to tone and timing. The how and the when matter more than anything else.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) By day's end, you may be able to say quite proudly I've done it — at last. This is likely to prove an important turning point.

Today in History

1909 During the first official test of the U.S. Army's first airplane, Orville Wright flies himself and a passenger, Lt. Frank Lahm, above Fort Myer, Va., for one hour and 12 minutes.

1919 Race-related rioting erupts in Chicago; the violence, which claimed the lives of 23 blacks and 15 whites, lasted until Aug. 3.

1953 The Korean War armistice is signed at Panmunjom, ending three years of fighting.

The area near the bombing at Centennial Park is blocked off July 29, 1996.

1974 The House Judiciary Committee votes 27-11 to adopt the first of three articles of impeachment against President Richard Nixon, charging he had personally engaged in a course of conduct designed to obstruct justice in the Watergate case.

Concept of Hitting Upward Erased From Mind by Drugs

A British judge acquitted AMY WINEHOUSE on Friday of assaulting a fan who asked to take her picture. Prosecutors claimed it was a deliberate assault. But Winehouse said she had merely pushed the fan because she felt intimidated — and claimed she was too short to have punched her in the face. (AP)
